JURY FIND THAT GREENFIELD WAS ELECTROCUTED

They Very Strongly Recommended That in Future All High Tensioned Wires Where Joints are Made, to be Thoroughly Insulated. The Joints Were Bare.

GOT 2200 VOLTS

Dr. Stallwood, Conducted a Post Mortem Examination and Found Two Slight Burns. The Lungs Were Darkened, as was the Blood. Heart in Good Shape.

"We find that Wm. Greenfield came to his death caused by a shock of electricity, caused from a telephone wire which he was handling, coming in contact with a live wire of high voltage which was used by the Dominion Power & Transmission Co., passing underneath the Bell Telephone Co.'s wires, at Beamsville near the spot where deceased was found and that the jury very strongly recommend that in future all highly tensioned wires where joints are made be thoroughly insulated."

The above verdict was brought in by the jury empanelled to inquire into the death of Wm. Greenfield, who was killed while working at Beamsville on Saturday morning, April 19.

The adjourned inquest was held in the Council Chambers, Grimsby, on Thursday afternoon last, before Coroner Alexander. County Crown Attorney Brennan was present in the interests of the Crown; Mr. H. Gibson of Hamilton looked after the interests of the D. P. & T. and Mr. Beveridge of Hamilton, was present on behalf of the Bell Telephone Co.

Mrs. Greenfield, widow of the deceased was the first witness and testified that they had been married eleven years, were married in the Old Country and had been living in Grimsby for about a year. Greenfield was a lineman for the National Telephone Co. in England for fourteen years before moving to Canada and was experienced in that work. His health was excellent and could not have been better. He never complained of any trouble. His family was a perfectly healthy family.

Mr. Bradley York of Beamsville was the next witness called. He lived on Mountain St. and it was in front of his property where the accident happened. He saw Greenfield and Pettit working on the wires and saw them put the wires over the electric light wires. Pettit was pulling the wire when he first saw him. He saw Greenfield come up the road and take hold of the wire with both hands and start to pull it out from under the limb of a plum tree. He said that Greenfield grabbed the wires, and dropped almost immediately. He shouted "Oh!" when he took hold of the wire and fell to the ground.

Mel Pettit, who was working with Greenfield, swore that he had been sent to Beamsville along with Greenfield to do the work. Greenfield was the boss of the outside work and he (Pettit) the boss of the inside job. They were stringing up two stretches of No. 12 iron wire. The D. P. & T. wires run over the Bell Telephone wires at that point. The wire was dead-ended on each pole, crossing the D. P. & T. wires. The wire was fastened to the pole at one end and on the insulator on the cross-arm at the other end, on the pole on which Pettit was working. Our wire was over the D. P. & T. wires, and Greenfield was apparently pulling the wire, although I did not see him. When I finished my work I turned around on the pole and took off my belt, and I noticed Greenfield coming up the road. When I landed on the ground I saw him lying on the grass, and I rushed over to him, he

Mrs. David Cline, Who Was the First Librarian in Grimsby Passes Away at Guelph.

The death occurred in Guelph, on Saturday, April 26, of Mrs. Mary Cline, relict of the late David Cline, who for a great number of years was a citizen of Grimsby and district, at the age of 82 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Cline resided in Grimsby for a great number of years and the bake shop on Depot St. was built by the late David Cline and conducted by him for a number of years.

The librarian of the first library in Grimsby was Mr. Cline and was located at that time on the property opposite the home of Mr. H. H. Marsh on Main St.

After the death of her husband in 1875, Mrs. Cline continued as librarian and the library was moved down town, into part of the double house, which stood on the property opposite the post office, which was moved away a couple of years ago.

A number of years ago, Mrs. Cline left Grimsby to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Christie of Guelph, at whose home she passed away, and with Mrs. Oliver Adams, Oshawa.

WORK PROGRESSING ON NEW P. O.

Excavators will be Finished Next Week. Had Some Time Draining the Ground Simcoe Construction Co. Doing the Work.

The work on the new post office is progressing as rapidly as is possible and the work is now beginning to form some definite shape.

The excavators are busy and the foreman of construction, Mr. James Blaney, informed the INDEPENDENT that he expected to have the foundation all dug out and ready for the concrete footing by Tuesday next.

Some trouble was experienced with water soaking into the hole being dug, but after considerable work satisfactory drains have been laid and in another day the ground will be as dry as a bone.

As soon as the cement footings are in, then the masons start and it will only be a week or two until the brick layers will be at work.

The contract for the building has been sub-let by Mr. Blakney of Gatineau to the Simcoe Construction Co. of Midland, who also have the contract for the building of a $50,000 building in Midland.

WORK STARTED ON BAPTIST CHURCH

New Addition will be 48x36 Built of Brick With Cement and Stone Foundation.

The contract for the erection of the new addition or school room, to the Grimsby Baptist church, has been awarded to Mr. M. B. Zimmerman and he started a large force of men to work on Monday morning tearing away the back portion of the old church, and getting ready to erect the new building.

The new building will be forty-eight feet wide and thirty-six feet long and will be built of brick with cement and stone foundations.

The building will start on the north side, on a line with the present church, and run south to twenty feet of the present building and will be built back to the east, a distance of thirty-six feet.

When finished, the building will be a great improvement not only over the old church, but also to the corner upon which it stands.

The plans and specifications of the new building were prepared by Mr. W. H. Radcliffe of Toronto, a son of the Rev. Mr. Radcliffe, pastor of the church.

$4000 FOR OIL

The Queenston and Grimsby stone road committee met in St. Catharines last week and laid out the work for the summer.

The one big item of work on this road this season will be the oiling of the whole thirty-three miles of road from the townline between North Grimsby and Saltfleet, to Queenston, at a cost of four thousand dollars.

The committee expressed themselves as satisfied with the work of Superintendent Russ, and were quite pleased at the good shape in which the road has come through the bad wet, open winter.

THE ROLLER-BOLLER COASTER HAS ARRIVED

Great Excitement Prevailed at Grimsby Beach When the Big Scow Loaded With Amusement Devices Arrives at the Piers.

WILL BE BIG YEAR

A New Waterworks and Sewerage System will be Installed. Vera K. on the Job. Park Being Thoroughly Cleaned From End to End.

Great excitement prevailed at Grimsby Beach on Friday afternoon when the long looked for scow containing the big Roller-Boller Coaster and other appartus tied up at the piers.

Everybody around the Beach had been looking and willing for the week for the scow to arrive, and when it did pull in all was excitement, and the whole countryside was on the job to see the big load of stuff that it carried.

The scow was towed across the lake by the tug Roy Mac and everything arrived O. K. despite the fact that it was loaded to capacity.

The scow was 120 feet long and 30 feet wide and drew 5 feet of water. It had on board the Roller-Boller Coaster, a large merry-go-round, a moving picture outfit, ball games and several other amusements, weighing in all about three hundred tons

The Roller Boller Coaster and the other devices are owned by Mr. W. E. Mills, who is now on the grounds superintending the unloading and the erection of the different devices.

The Coaster is the largest one its kind in Canada and for the past number of years has been operated at the Toronto Exhibition, but as the big fair had to be moved, this coaster was secured for Grimsby Beach, and a new one will be built in its stead at the Exhibition.

The coaster contains 120,000 feet of lumber, and will be built a short distance down the road from the dance hall, and will run away back to the road on the east side of the Beach.

Seven hundred Tungsten lights are used to illuminate the coaster at night and we fail to see where you can get any better thriller than sliding on it after dark.

The merry-go-round will be erected across the road from the coaster and will be enclosed by a pavillion 30x80.

The other games and amusements will be built at different points along the "Drag."

Mr. Mills also brought his thirty feet gasoline launch the Vera K. over with him and will operate it this summer to carry pleasure parties along the lake.

The Beach itself is being thoroughly cleaned, and the citizens will hardly know the old place on opening day. A complete new water works system is being installed, as is a sewerage system, with a disposal plant

The hotels are being renovated throughout, and will be in far better shape to handle a crowd than ever before.

More picnics have been booked up already, than have ever been booked before in the middle of June, and everything looks rosy for a big year at this beautiful resort.

Carpenters and laborers of all kinds are wanted at the Beach, as a great amount of work has yet to be done before opening day, May 24.

Mr. Beck, who has run the merry-go-round at the Beach for the past three years, will again be on the job with his machine and will be at his old stand.

A. W. Moore will again have the moving picture show and the public are again assured of seeing good "Movies."

EVERYBODY VOTE FOR THE BY-LAW

Thanks, to the good work of Publicity Commissioner Walker—and a few of Grimsby's progressive citizens—Grimsby has landed another factory, and believe me it is a crackerjack.

The new concern is none other than the Canadian Steel Specialty Company of Gravenhurst, Ont., and any person or firm who has done business with them will tell you what kind of a firm they are.

It is a long story, how this firm came to locate in the Biggest Town in Lincoln County, but we are going to tell it to you just the same.

Along in the month of February a traveller for a Steel firm dropped into Grimsby and called upon the Radiant Electric Co. to sell them some goods. After business matters had been attended to, the traveller and Mr. F. E. Hewitt, the Manager of the Radiant, were discussing things "Factorily" and otherwise.

During the conversation, the traveller mentioned the fact that his uncle Mr. Harry Hess, of the Canadian Steel Specialty Co. of Gravenhurst, was looking for a town to locate his factory in.

Mr. Hewitt immediately said, "Why doesn't he come to a real, live town?" "Why doesn't he move to Grimsby."

BY-LAW PASSED

Plans for Baptist Church Addition Accepted. G. T. R. Will Fix Elizabeth St. Subway. Council Would Not Entertain Government Drainage Proposition.

The Village Fathers got away with a lot of business on Monday night and did it in short order too.

The most important item on the bill of fare was the passing of a by-law granting the Canada Steel Specialty Co. of Gravenhurst, the sum of $10,000 for ten years and a fixed assessment of $2,500 per year for ten years, the by-law to be ratified by the people, a copy of which appears in this issue.

The Clerk reported to the Council that the Grand Trunk Railway had notified him that they would send a man tock over the Elizabeth St. subway and see what could be done in the way of lowering it and draining it properly.

Reeve Johnson reported that the Government Inspector on Public Buildings had been in town on Saturday looking over the drainage part of the new post office and had said that he would see that the Government made a grant of $200 towards the building of a drain from the post office, along Main St. to the creek. The Council could not see their way clear to go to the heavy expense of laying this drain, as it would have to be large enough to drain all the property on Main St.

The Reeve asked the opinion of the Council on the oiling of Depot St. This matter was discussed at some length and was laid over for further discussion.

San Jose Scale Inspector C. H. Bromley, reported that he had visited seventy lots, between Maple Ave. and Elizabeth St. and Main St. and the G.T.R. tracks and had only found four places free from the scale; in the majority of the cases the trees were very badly infested, in fact, Elizabeth St. was a regular nest of scale. The scale was slight on cherries, but very heavy on apples. In some spots the scale was so bad that it had even attacked the currant bushes around the property.

The Council were of the opinion that Mr. Bromley stop inspecting and go right to work, spraying and see that the whole town was sprayed thoroughly and instructed him to secure outfits immediately and start to work.

Facts and Fancies

By Frank Fairborn

The Closure is necessary in order that the business of the Country may go on and that the obstructive minority may not over-rule the will of the people, as represented by the majority—the Editor of the Toronto Globe in 1911.

* * * * * *

The Closure is the destruction of liberty of speech, it is a gag law introduced into parliament, it is ruling by brute force, it prevents the representatives of the people from discussing question before the country—the Editor of the Globe in 1913.

* * * * * *

Whether the Closure is good or bad, all depends upon whose ox is gored—in 1911, it was a beautiful thing—a thing of beauty and a joy forever. In 1913 the boot is on the other foot, it is an accursed thing, conceived in iniquity and born in sin, but it passed just the same.

* * * * * *

The Closure means a rule in parliament by which a vote can be taken at any time after each member, who wishes to speak, has spoken once.

* * * * * *

The reason that it is not satisfactory to the Liberal opposition in parliament, is because one of the members, Dr. Clark, of Red Deer, wishes to speak on each question eleven times, and Dr. Pugsley of the Maritime Provinces, wishes to speak on each question seventeen times—the Closure will cut off a lot of Clarkism and Pugsleyism, and nobody will be hurt.

* * * * * *

Mr. Ben Armstrong, Grimsby, while not a king, looks upon himself as a king maker, and in case anything should happen at Ottawa, Ben has arranged everything satisfactorily for himself and Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

* * * * * *

Although Ben is a strong Conservative, he has a keen eye to the wants and desires of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his followers and has framed up what he thinks would suit Laurier, in the following lines. This shows that Ben has been keeping close track of the politics of Canada in the past ten years, and that what he reads, he remembers—Ben's forecast of the Court of King Laurier I. is as follows:

* * * * * *

The Grit party at Ottawa, are advocating full autonomy for Canada, with a Canadian navy, a Canadian Fourth of July, and Canada to ultimately be an independent nation within the empire.

* * * * * *

If they should succeed in bringing on an election and be returned to power, why not declare our independence at once, and declare Sir Wilfrid, king. If this were brought about, we would suggest the following names with respective titles as High Dignitaries of his Court, for his careful consideration:

* * * * * *

The best piece of road that I have travelled over in the Township of North Grimsby this year, is the piece running from G. M. Beamer's residence south to the T. J. Farrell road.

* * * * * *

This piece of road is graded up narrow and fairly high, and is in good shape to shed the rain and carry the traffic.

* * * * * *

The great fault with the roads in the Township of North Grimsby is that many of them are too wide.

* * * * * *

The wide road takes twice the time to work and to put in shape, and then it is always too flat to throw the water off and the consequence is that very little traffic in wet weather converts the road into a mud hole.

* * * * * *

It seems terribly hard to get the ordinary farmer away from the old fashioned road, about three rods wide, and get his mind to look favorably upon the road which is one rod wide.

* * * * * *

If you talk to a path master or some of the road commissioners about narrow roads, they immediately bring up the old argument of two loads of hay.

* * * * * *

They will look at you with a wise look and ask you how on earth two loads of hay could pass on a narrow road.

* * * * * *

My opinion about this is that it would be cheaper to burn up one of the loads of hay, wagon and all, and let the township pay for it, than to have the teams of all the farmers in the township mucking through the wide, muddy and almost impassible roads two or three months in each year.

* * * * * *

In the first place it is a rare thing for two loads of hay to meet on a narrow road or any road, as loads of hay are generally all going in one direction.

* * * * * *

In the next place, there are more loads of hay stuck in the mud on wide roads than is ever possible or ever will be possible in passing each other on narrow roads.

* * * * * *

My advice to the farmers of the county is to get the roads into narrow well graded shape and let the darned loads of hay look out for themselves.

* * * * * *

Some farmers who love the old style wide muddy road, point out to me that I advised W. B. Russ to grade the Q. & G. stone road narrow and they claim it is now too narrow.

* * * * * *

In reply to this my answer is that when I advised the narrow grading of the Q. & G. stone road, the traffic on it was not half what it is today, and as a matter of fact, very few people are inconvenienced by the width of the grade on this road at present.

* * * * * *

When it is taken into consideration that there is more traffic on the Q. & G. stone road than on all the other roads in the township combined, it is ridiculous to compare the width of grade on this road with any other.

* * * * * *

J. C. Marlatt, Silas Wardell, Tommy Stephen and a few other short-circuit citizens on Depot St. got the small potatoes idea into their heads that they could stop work on the new post office by a little obstruction tactics.

* * * * * *

These men did not want to allow the contractors to run a bit of water down Depot St., in order to give the men a chance to work on the foundation.

* * * * * *

I suppose they thought that if they could obstruct the work on the new public building a little bit, the Borden Government would resign and that the country would go to the eternal bow-wows, so they appealed to Dr. Alexander, the medical health officer, and told him a little fairy story about the water being poluted. It was, of course, pure imagination—I would call it a fib, only all these men are members of the church, and church members are not supposed to fib and keep in good standing.

* * * * * *

Dr. Alexander went into a trance over the matter and before he awakened, he imagined that he was the "Ditches and Watercourse Act" instead of the Board of Health—the Doctor was awakened from his sleep and now is again in his natural condition.

* * * * * *

It is the duty of the medical health officer of any municipality to take charge of the condition of any water, in his jurisdiction, but a man must be pretty sound asleep and dreaming pretty hard when he imagines that a medical health officer has anything to do with where water runs, how it runs, or who runs it there—that is a matter for the municipal Council, under the Ditches and Watercourse Act.

* * * * * *

The Doctor fell into the grievous mistake of imagining that he had charge of all the rivers, lakes and streams of this country and when the short-circuit men called on him to come to their assistance and help them block the building of the new post office, the Doctor came across with the goods quicker than fire would scorch a feather, but he was like the fellow in the song, who "walked right in and turned around and walked right out again."

* * * * * *

In a conversation with me over the telephone, the Doctor made a great flutter and said that these men were breaking the law by running the water into the street—the Doctor was not quite awake at that time, he was simply talking in his sleep.

* * * * * *

If you cannot run water off private property into the street, where would you run it to—up the stove pipe, or up the side of the barn? You might use part of it to water your whiskey, but what would you do with the surplus?

* * * * * *

Why, Doctah, my deah fella, that is what streets and ditches are for, to take care of the water from private property. All water from private property, both in villages, towns, cities and townships is conveyed, under the law, from private property on to the streets or roads and into the ditches and the sewers that run along them.

* * * * * *

If the municipality does not provide sewers to take the water from private property under ground, then it must take care of the water on the public streets through gutters and drains, on the side of the street, and the people working on the post office were quite within their rights when they wished to run the water along the street in its natural course down the incline, on Depot St.

* * * * * *

Had the new post office site been chosen next door to the stores and shops of the little short circuit men, the water could have run through their back yards or over their lawns or even up their stove pipes, and there would not have been any kick.

* * * * * *

Had the post office site been selected where the medical health officer wanted it, they could have run a canal down the street with enough water in it to float a steam boat, and the eminent medical health officer would never have blinked an eye-lid.

* * * * * *

It is this way in nearly all small villages, the little narrow short circuit fellows always resort to the school boy game if they cannot have their post office, the blacksmith shop, the grist mill and saw mill all built at their own doors.

* * * * * *

They do not give a gol darn for the town or their fellow citizens, their whole idea is to grab all themselves, and let their neighbors scratch gravel and look out for themselves.

* * * * * *

It won't make the difference of a single dollar bill to anybody in Grimsby, where the new post office is built. Every man who attends to his own business, and looks after the wants of the public will get a share of the business and will get three good meals a day, and a suit of new boots and a pair of clothes every year, while grass grows and water runs.

* * * * * *

Jim Erlatt and John Avall has a flight over the new post office every day, but nobody pays any attention to them.

To Our Friends and Neighbors

You know us. You know we would not — that we could not afford to — go back on our word. Nor can you afford to ignore this money-back-if-not-satisfied offer on this splendid laxative.

We honestly believe we have the best bowel remedy ever made — the most pleasant-to-take, most permanently beneficial laxative for relief from the miseries and dangers arising from constipation.

We wouldn't say this if we didn't believe it to be true. We wouldn't risk our reputation by making such statements did we not feel sure you would find them true.

Our faith is built both on the knowledge of what Rexall Orderlies are made of and on observation of very many severe cases in which they have proven their merit.

Try them at Our Risk

If they do not abundantly prove their merit with you also — if you are not entirely satisfied with them — we will refund your money — and we will do that on your mere say-so. We don't ask you to risk a penny. Isn't that fair?

Just let the bowels fail in properly doing their work — just let their action be delayed and incomplete and the entire system and every other organ suffers. Wastes that should have been dispelled remain to poison the system.

Headaches, biliousness, nervousness and other tormenting and serious ills are common when the bowels fail to act daily as nature intended. All this may be avoided, if you will accept our advice.

Rexall Orderlies

taste just like candy. They are soothing and easy in action. They do not cause griping, nausea, purging or excessive looseness. They tend to tone and strengthen intestinal nerves and muscles. They promptly relieve constipation, and help to permanently overcome it.

Rexall Orderlies promote better spirits and better health. In all of these things they are vastly superior to old-fashioned, harsh salts and other purgatives, which are not only unpleasant to take but which usually leave the bowels in worse condition than before. We particularly recommend Rexall Orderlies for children, aged and delicate persons.

Rexall Orderlies come in vest-pocket tin boxes. 12 tablets, 10c; 36 tablets, 25c; 80 tablets, 50c.

We have it in many patterns.

It costs very little.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my brother asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilled. I wrote them and got THE NEW MYRNON TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued the treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

Letters to the Editor

THE MYSTERY OF LIFE. WHAT IS IT?

Socrates on the future life disapproves of suicide and says a man should wait and not take his own life until God summons him.

Yet, he acknowledges that he ought to be grieved at death if he were not persuaded that he was going to God's who are wise and good, and to men departed who are better than those he would leave behind.

By death the foolishness of the body would be cleared away and those who loved wisdom and purity in this life would be pure and hold converse with other pure souls and know the light of truth. The pure person who has arrayed the soul in her own proper jewels—temperance, justice, courage, nobility and truth, is ready to journey to the other world. Socrates would not have his friends sorrow at his hard lot, or say at his burial "Thus we lay out Socrates" or "Thus we follow him to the grave or bury him," but must say to themselves that they were burying his body only.

Plato, the pupil of Socrates (427-347 B.C., says that earthly life can never be free from evil and that we must flee away as quickly as possible to God by making ourselves like Him through virtue and wisdom; the body is an evil; the grave of the higher life, unrighteousness arising in the soul, allies itself to the lower elements of the body and develops all kinds of evil.

Every man must seek the highest good which is virtue, the virtuous man alone is free, only he who takes hold on the eternal can be truly satisfied.

Virtue is its own reward, as vice its own punishment; virtue is rewarded in the life to come and vice punished.

It is hades to know that you can do something better than other people and never have an opportunity to prove it.

To have a clear conscience, a clean record and go to bed hungry; to have long faced sanctimonious persons tell you that the Lord loveth whom he chasteneth; to have those everlasting "don't worry and keep smiling" signs staring you in the face when you don't know where the next meal is coming from.

Picture the servitude in which masses of people are living and tell of the suffering and hardship embarrassment and unpleasantness they endure because they are self-supporting.

Life is a great mystery and it becomes more mystic and unfathomable the deeper one thinks upon it.

Why should men and women have to endure the agony of a miserable existence, suffering as some do for years—even a lifetime, until called away from their troubles to, we hope a better life where earthly struggles cease.

Life is health and health is productive to life and many are sacrificing their health in ceaseless activity for wealth, and afterwards spend their wealth trying to regain health, consequently they lose both.

Life is an animate existence, the union of soul and body, it is a quickening principle and many sacrifice themselves for the everchanging demands not of nature but of fashion.

Nature changeth not, it is an unalterable law and we must conform to it or suffer, there are many paths in life; but only one to health.

Many sweep through life through undisguised fortunes left waiting in their path, others are like the ship on the turbulent billows, anxiously awaiting the calm.

Many have to suffer greatly through no fault of their own, but rather to the ignorance, apathy and carelessness of those responsible for their upbringing, numbers are damned and cursed into the world almost from birth, others are lured and driven into cunning vice, shame and wickedness by those whose motives are devilish and pernicious.

There is no royal road to success, the prospects of life are open to all who desire to attain unto them. The devil sometimes leers beautifully and the world looks complacent enough for the time, but when health begins to fail and vapid pleasures pall, you then realize that your life hitherto has been after all but a hideous mockery and sham.

When acquaintances look askance and it dawns on a weakened mind that unless deliverance comes you will soon be looked upon as a social leper, you get panic stricken and rise blindly at the first so-called remedy which presents itself with unfortunate results.

One-third of our lifetime should be spent in sleep and unless you enjoy clear, easy sleep, you are badly off; sleep is a life-bringer, recruiting your forces for the probable strenuous work of the day to come.

The best method by which to become miserable is to think about yourself, how much you have lost, how much you have not made and the poor prospects for the future.

A brave man with a soul in him gets out of such doleful ruts, laughs at discouragements, rolls up his sleeves, sings and makes the best of life.

A man who rises above his environments and keeps his manhood, will be the better and stronger for his adversities.

Many a noble ship has been saved by throwing overboard valuable cargo and many a man is better and more humane after he has lost his gold.

The secret of true manhood and womanhood is the key of life—long happiness.

It is the colossal ignorances of vital and important matters that lead to such misery and despair.

To gain an idea of the total extent of the pain and anguish, the depth of misery to which whole families are plunged, through ignorance, recklessness and otherwise, one would have to multiply the number of published instances many times.

The whole earth, human and animal, is growing under the weight of oppression.

When will deliverance appear?

Not under the present system of affairs. There is too much of number one, get all you can and the rest go to the devil. This is a backward movement. The social reformation of the world can never be effected in that spirit herein lies a great problem; most people can be happy if they will, things are what they make of it; they look upon life through smoked spectacles and are unable to discern the beauty.

The cure for all doubt, misery and grief, is action, said Sir H. M. Stanley and action wisely planned and skillfully directed is also a cure for an empty pocket. It will transform failure into success.

To those who suffer from jaundice 'tis said that everything appears in a yellow light owing to the peculiar action which the disease has upon the iris and pupil of the eye, similarly, when people allow themselves to suffer from the jaundice of morbid and wrong conceptions, they cannot take a roseate view of their surroundings. There are some who could be happy anywhere and almost under any circumstances, true, this may be their nature, but what a beautiful example.

Some are ever unhappy, however good their portion, they always complain about something and never lack an excuse for their censoriousness, not only are they miserable themselves, but others in their presence are affected.

To greet another with a profession of friendship and affection and afterwards to calumniate that so-called friend's good name and reputation, is, unfortunately too common a practice, it may perchance, be with little thought of the serious effects which may follow, that people permit themselves to talk thus idly, yet lives may be ruined through gossip which may have little or no foundation, so don't waste talk and give yourself to selfish pleasures and a purposeless existence when life has something better to offer.

Success comes through the happy combination of ability and opportunity, combined with natural talent plus knowledge, with honesty, integrity and industry.

There is no room here below for drones and deadheads, workers not shirkers are wanted.

Some are continually complaining about the decadency of things, forgetting the solution of the problem lies in their own hands, a few cannot revolutionize conditions unless we have men like Napoleon, it requires the undivided and united efforts of all.

The cause that so little is accomplished is due to division in the various organizations, united we stand, divided we fall, the ceaseless march of life is onward; it is like the vast horde of locusts that sweep everything before them.

Some will decry any law, however good it may be for the community; they judge others by their own little mind and sell themselves as a standard whereby all must conform and regulate.

A double minded man is unstable in all his ways; do not despise a man because he was born poor. His virtues may be countless and worth more.

Many beautiful flowers grow on the mountain side and many a practically barren tree has proved a guide and landmark to a traveller in the desert.

Wealth does not always improve us, a man as he gets to be worth more, may become worthless. The use of money is in the value, that can be produced.

The world moves along not merely by the gigantic moves of its hero workers, but by the tiny pushes of every honest worker.

All men may give some tiny push and feel they are doing something for mankind, honest endeavor is always rewarded, though it walteth long.

Happiness is the result of virtue and virtue does not consist in the pursuit of one's own happiness.

Let us then be up and doing, with a heart for any fate, still achieving, still pursuing, learn to labor and to wait.

Geo. Haynes, Grimsby.

Give Your Boy a Farm

Every farmer wants to provide for his sons, but seldom will the old homestead, developed with toil, suffice to meet their needs. The boys have been brought up to the land. They are familiar with all the phases of farming. They should have land of their own. How is the farmer going to meet this emergency?

The Logical Answer is Western Canada

Thousands of acres, divided into 160 acre farms, are being thrown open for entry by the Dominion Government along or near the lines of the Canadian Northern Railway

The land gives a wide choice. There are some plots on the open prairie and others again in the well-wooded, well-watered districts in

Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta

A large number of these homesteads are particularly adapted to mixed farming.

Write or Enquire To-Day

Any agent of the Canadian Northern Railway, or the undersigned will be glad to send, on application, full information as to the location of these homesteads and the way to secure and reach them. Write for "The Bread Basket", "35,000 Free Homesteads" and our Peace River Booklet. You will be interested.

THE END OF THE BENNETT-RUSS AFFAIR

The end of the Bennett-Russ affair came off yesterday afternoon, when Police Magistrate Riggins fined Mr. Bennett five dollars and costs for assaulting Mr. Russ, in a dispute over the work done on the Beamston & Grimsby stone road, about two weeks ago.

On Monday Mr. Bennett's lawyer informed Mr. Russ' lawyer that Mr. Bennett would plead guilty and that it was not necessary to call witnesses.

In court yesterday, Mr. Bennett pleaded guilty to common assault, although the information had been laid, "assault, with intent to do bodily harm."

In order to have the matter disposed of, and wound up, Mr. Russ consented to have the charge reduced to common assault and the matter was dealt with under that heading.

That big turkey that was furnished the White House family and whose crop was given daily massaging to facilitate the process of digestion probably did taste a bit better than the fine little eight pound hen turkeys that graced the tables of hundreds of folks all over the land.

EASY

The man who writes to know if he can marry on $8 a week has wasted ink. Of course he can. Two dollars will secure a tasty license, $5 will square the preacher and there will be $1 left for a modest wedding breakfast. And then? Oh well, that's not the question.

When you spend money for Spring Clothes it's wiser to consider what you get than what you pay. If you can do that you'll find it great economy to buy one of the suits we're offering at $20, they're really clothes of far higher worth—better tailoring, cloth, style and fit than the price demands. As an example of what we're offering at this price, let us tell you that the lot includes the famous satin finish blue serge suits with silk linings, genuine $25 values.

Hamilton's finest display of Slip-On Raincoats are to be found here. Prices $7.50 to $20. These are being worn this season by a great many in place of a spring overcoat. In our boys' department we have suits ranging in price from $2.50 to $16.50, with a very special line at $5. Most of these suits are made of the same cloth as our men's, and with every suit at $5 and over we give a watch, a fob, a knife, a ball and bat or a catcher's mask, free.

NEW FACTORY FOR GRIMSBY

The traveller, who happened to be a nephew of Mr. Hess', said "This burg would suit him fine, I will write him at once."

Both Mr Hewitt and the traveller wrote to the Gravenhurst people that day, and Mr. Hewitt, received a very favorable reply. He then turned the matter over to Mr. H. D. Walker, Grimsby's wide-awake Publicity Commissioner.

Mr. Walker jumped into the game right off the bat and got into communication with Mr. Hess, he wrote him setting forth the advantages of Grimsby, and sent him some of Grimsby's literature.

Mr. Hess came to Grimsby, in March and looked over the ground. He explained at that time, that his reason for moving was on account of the lack of room in his present factory, and also that he was located too far away from the big centres of opulation, was only on one line of railway, and that the freight rates were very very high.

He met the council and Mr Walker and they went into the matter thoroughly. He showed them his orders, that were being rushed out, the amount of business the firm had done, and showed the great prospects that were in store for this kind of a factory.

Mr. Walker showed him the Van Dyke property on Victoria Ave., upon which stands the big cement building, for years used as an evaporator and later as a roller and ice rink.

The building suited him right down to the ground, and he said it could not have been better had it been built on purpose for his factory.

About two weeks later Mr. Walker and Councillor W. F. Randall paid a visit to the Gravenhurst factory, and found things very much to their liking. The factory was packed to the roof and there was hardly room to turn around once you got inside.

They found eighteen men at work, and the factory so full of goods in different forms of making that it was utterly impossible to get even one more man into the building.

They looked over everything in the plant and came home and advised the Grimsby Council to take the factory when they had the chance as it was a sure-fire winner.

This concern has been running for four years, and ever since it was started has grown rapidly, and it is getting bigger all the time.

Six men were employed the first year and for the last two years eighteen have been on the pay-roll.

In the Grimsby factory twenty-five men will be employed right at the start and more added as they are needed.

In order to make this shift the company ask the town to grant them a loan of $10,000 for a term of fifteen years and at the Council meeting on Monday night the by-law was given its first and second reading and it is now up to the people to say whether this factory will start business in Grimsby or not.

Twenty-five men means twenty-five more families for the town and that is certainly a great deal better than having the big building on Victoria Ave. standing idle.

Mr. VanDyke, the owner of the building has made Mr. Hess a very fair offer and one that will not be available in a short time if the citizens turn down this by-law.

The goods manufactured by this company are steel chairs and tables, with veneered birch tops and seats for ice cream parlors. Pressed steel standards, opera seats for theatre and moving picture shows. Counter stools for short-order restaurants and billiard rooms, observations chairs, shoe rest stools and it is their intention to manufacture school seats as well.

Besides the manufacturing end of the businesss, it is their intention to put in their own veneer plant and peel the logs and dry them right in Grimsby, instead of bringing the veneer already finished from the north country.

Of course, you have all heard of that famous quotation by Emmerson: "If a man makes a better mouse trap or preaches a better sermon than his neighbor, no matter if he live in the depths of the woods, the public will wear a beaten path right to his door."

That quotation fits this case to a nicety. The Specialty people are away up in the great wood country of Muskoka, and despite the fact that they are practically isolated away from the rest of the country, yet, the public has worn a beaten path to their door, because they made a better line of steel goods than their neighbors did; and as a consequence, they wish to locate in a more thickly settled portion of the country, and have picked upon Grimsby as the town.

It is up to every public spirited citizen of Grimsby to get out and work and vote for the by-law and make Grimsby the banner town of the banner county of the banner Province of the Dominion of Canada.

VOTE FOR THE BY-LAW

Be a Charming Woman

You never saw a beautiful woman who didn't have beautiful hair. The charms of a beautiful woman lie in her hair. Many women do not realize the attractions they possess because they do not give proper attention to the hair.

The women of the "400" are famed for their beauty, not because their facial features are superior to those of other women, but because they know how to keep young by supplying vigor, lustre and strength to their hair.

Up to a few years ago PARISIAN Sage could hardly be obtained in Canada. But now this delightful hair restorer can be had in every town. W. M. Stewart sells it in Grimsby, for 50 cents a bottle, and guarantees it to stop falling hair, eradicate dandruff.

GREENFIELD ELECTROCUTED

was apparently dead. I did not see him have hold of the wire, but I knew he was pulling it by the jar of the pole which I was on. Greenfield gasped a little after I reached him. The whole D. P. & T. system is badly insulated. We were sent to do the work by Mr. Holcombe, Wire Chief of the District. Greenfield had no gloves on and neither did I. We knew that the 2200 wires were owned but that the 2200 series were dead.

Mr. Geo. Cope and Mr. Fred Franklin, corroborated Mr. Pettit's evidence with regard to the insulation and the closeness of the two companies' wires.

Mr. Edgar Farewell, swore that he had had about sixteen years' experience in line work, and had helped to install the first wires put up in Grimsby. He examined the spot in Beamsville, and was up both the telephone and electric pole. The wires on the D. P. & T. pole were in fairly good shape with the exception of two joints that were not soldered or tapped, and one wire that was getting bleached out and showing the effects of the weather. The two joints were perfectly bare, and that they should have been mechaniacly soldered and tapped. He then read an extract from the National Underwriters Book, regarding the soldering and tapping of joints, and that the joints were not covered as they should have been.

Mr. Harry Staley corroborated Farewell's evidence with regard to the joints and presented a diagram of the ground and poles, showing the open joints.

Dr. Stallwood, of Beamsville, who conducted the Post-Mortem on Greenfield, testified that he had been called in at the time of Greenfield's death, and examined him for heart action and found none. He did not examine him for burns at that time.

In his post-mortem he found a burn in the middle joint of the little finger of the left hand, and a similar burn on the great toe of the of the right foot. The marks were similar to burns which he had seen on another man who had been electrocuted.

I could find no other cause to which his death could be attributed. His heart cells were normal. There was no hemmorage of the brain. The blood was darker than ordinarily, so were the lungs. Something unusual had taken place to change the color of the blood. There were no signs of apoplexy and no signs of stillation of the heart. I attribute his death to shock of some kind, possibly an electric shock. In certain forms of heart trouble he would struggle. The only thing out of the way, was that one of the membranes of the brain was out of place. This would cause headache, but not death. If a man's body is moved after death he will gasp.

The jury then adjourned and the above verdict was returned.

HOT-BED OF SCALE

Councillor Mitchell laid the plans and specifications of a new brick addition to the Baptist church before the Council.

Moved by Randall, seconded by Mitchell, that the Clerk be instructed to insert a notice in the INDEPENDENT notifying the citizens that owing to the report of the San Jose Scale Inspector, the fruit trees in the Village are so badly infected with scale that they must comply with the law at once and if they are not in a position to arrange for spraying, they must give notice to the Inspecotr and he will assist them to get the work done. Carried.

Moved by Mitchell, seconded by Randall, that the plans submitted for the building of a Sunday School room and other improvements in connection with the Baptist church, be approved by this Council. Carried.

Moved by Mitchell, seconded by Bourne, that as the San Jose Scale Inspector having reported that there is a great amount of scale, this Council deems it expedient to purchase a spraying outfit, providing suitable men can be found to operate the same; and that the Reeve be a committee to purchase same at once, if necessary, after endeavoring to arrange otherwise. Carried

Moved by Randall, seconded by Bourne, that the proposition of the Government Inspector to donate the sum of $200 towards laying a drain along Main St., be not entertained but we believe that arrangements can be made with the residents on Depot St. to co-operate in putting down a permanent drain and would suggest that he take the matter up with them. Carried.

HOW ABOUT THAT HOME YOU ARE GOING TO BUILD

When a young fellow decides that it would pay him better to put his spare cash into a house and lot, he seriously wants to have a home to his own liking and therefore, thinks it best to build one.

The one big sticker in the building of a home, is the fact that he cannot secure a suitable lot, or site to build upon.

But the chance for a choice lot is now offered to you, and you will make a big mistake if you don't grab one of them when you have the chance.

These lots are in the new East End Survey, just opened up by Messrs Cook, Randall & Gibson, and a plan of the lots appears on another page of this paper.

All the lots are of good size, high and dry and all planted to fruit. They face on that beautiful street, Maple Ave. and on that good street of all good streets, Main St., besides the two beautiful new avenues that the owners are opening, namely Reson and Wilton Aves.

These two new streets will be soon graded and fixed up in readiness for the beautiful homes that are sure to adorn them in the near future. The owners are also endeavoring to have the council of the two municipalities build cement walks on the new survey and thereby make it the swellest section of Grimsby.

Before you buy you had better look these over and then interview the owners.

ONIONS A MONEY CROP

To grow onions to perfection, a certain amount of care is necessary. They succeed best in a rich loamy soil somewhat light rather than heavy and when subsoil is of a fairly dry nature.

Indifferent soils may be much improved by the addition of suitable manures, and by a system of intercropping or changing the ground so that the same soil of vegetables will not be grown in the same division of the garden two years in succession.

Where a crop of celery has been grown trenching is not needed. The deep digging and manuring required for celery is sufficient to invigorate the soil.

Ground intended for onions should be trenched and manured in the fall and left in ridges during the winter fully exposed to the weather. It will then be in good condition for spelling down when frost is out of the ground. The whole surface is then lightly forked over and the soil well broken and leveled down, so that raking will be unnecessary for securing a fairly uniform surface. If the soil is as dry as it should be and moderately light it may then be well rolled or rolled previous to making into beds and preparing drills for the seeds.

Onions form the best bulbs on first ground, therefore the ground should be well trodden over and the footprints effaced by passing the rake over them, at the same time removing all stones or other rough material from the surface. The ground should be divided into beds about four feet wide with one foot of an alley between.

Shallow drills should then be drawn nine inches apart and a quarter of an inch deep, the seeds scattered thinly among them and lightly covered with the back of a shovel. Finally the whole surface may be lightly topped over with the back of a spade.

The after treatment consists of keeping the ground free from weeds and in thinning out the onions gradually when large enough to handle until they are three to six inches apart if good sized specimens are required.

Deep hoeing, so beneficial to most vegetable crops, is not so to onions, as the object with these is to keep the ground firm, so that the bulbs may be the more enlarged on its surface than they would be likely to become if surrounded with loose soil. Hand weeding is the best in the lines. In very dry seasons, watering is sometimes advisable, but it should never be practiced when the plants show signs of forming thick necks instead of their proper bulbs.

Towards the end of the summer when the tops begin to bend down and show signs of dying away it is time to pull the bulbs. They should be taken up in dry weather, and laid with their basis of roots towards the south, on a hard dry surface, where they can be turned over occasionally and thoroughly dried before being stored.

The decayed tops and the roots should be removed, the latter should be twisted off, not cut. They will if "tanked" or tied up in bunches and suspended to the rafters of a cool dry shed where frost is excluded.

The experienced grower will have many other details in his plans but the above suggestions are intended to be helpful to the amateur who has yet to learn the first steps in onion growing.

LOSING MONEY ON BUMPER CROPS

A series of interesting fertilizer experiments have just been completed by J. W. Lloyd, of the Illinois Experiment Station. Among his findings the following results stand out prominently.

(1) Manuring in the hill proves superior to broadcast manuring, except where a very large amount of manure was broadcasted.

(2) Although from four and one-half to twelve tons of manure per acre gave the best crop results, from two and one-quarter to three tons per acre, carefully applied to the hills, produced a greater net profit.

(3) Raw rock phosphate in moderate amounts increased the yield of early melons, the total yield and the net profit. Perfectly balanced fertilizers produced very large crops, but were so expensive that the value of the crop would not justify their purchase.

The results bring out a point which, though most important, is too often overlooked. The most profitable crop is not necessarily the biggest crop, but rather the one which shows the biggest balance of profit when the cost of raising it is deducted from the proceeds of the sales.

THE NIAGARA DISTRICT AS SEEN BY AN ENGLISH JOURNALIST

Growers' Association) than anywhere else in the Belt.

And now, reverting from details to generalities, it will be interesting to inquire why fruit growing is a more reliable and prosperous industry in that strip of Old Ontario than it is, say, in our County of Kent. A climate that ensures quicker growth and fuller development is not a complete explanation. A combination of favorable conditions for production with wide opportunities for consumption, fails to account fully for the sustained success of those Ontario orchards. The fact that elaborate channels of distribution link producer with consumer, still leaves the riddle unanswered. For, as English growers know to their cost, the quickest trains and the densest population afford no guarantee that ripe fruit will not arrive in a congested market, where, being perishable, it must be sold to no profit and perhaps at a loss.

There is only one way of preventing ripe fruit being sacrificed to the temporary caprice of supply and demand. From a perishing article, it must be changed into an enduring article. In other words, it must be dried, preserved with sugar, or packed, sterilized, in an air-tight vessel.

Jam-making does not meet the difficulty. But canning does. Canada's canneries—those huge establishments dotted along the Belt, and in many other districts of Southern Ontario—serve to sustain the demand, and steady the market, for orchard produce. They have an insatiable appetite for sound fruit of various grades and all available species, grapes alone excepted (and in the wine and juice factories the grape grower also has an alternative to the dessert market). Thus in Ontario a crop of late strawberries or undersized apples does not have to be sold—as sometimes happens in England—at a price that barely pays for picking and carriage.

At various dates, I visited several of those large, clean factories, where colonies of cheerful women and girls were assisting complex machinery to skin tomatoes, shell peas, stone peaches, stalk rasuberries and deal scrupulously with a dozen more fruits and vegetables; other amazing mechanism cooking, covering and cooling the filled tins, which, all ready for their pretty labels, pour forth in a glistening cataract totalling many thousands a day.

Observe, then, that the farmers of the Belt grow fruit, not for Canada alone, but for the world at large. Often with great zest had I eaten Bartlett pears in Great Britain; and so it was like meeting an old friend when, on my first visit to Grimsby, some well-laden pear trees were introduced to me by that name. And as I gazed at those pear trees, my thoughts took a new turn. In form, foliage and fruit, they certainly did look very familiar—a circumstance which, on noting my perplexity, the orchardist was quick to explain. "In your country," he said, "they call it the Williams." Odd that one should have been paying double homage to the same fruit under different aspects and different names! Mr. Enoch Bartlett of Boston, certainly deserves credit for introducing into America the famous variety propagated in Berkshire, England, by Mr. Williams; but to celebrate the event with a re-christening was, I think, going a little too far.

The Williams, under its trans-Atlantic alias, is a paying crop in Ontario, where Clapp's Favorite, and a long list of familiar French varieties also thrive and sell well. Plums figure conspicuously in the orchard and in its balance sheet. The nurserymen stock three distinct groups in great variety, namely, the European group (including Greengage, Victoria, Monarch, Pond's Seedling, Coe's Golden Drop, German Prune and Italian Prune); the American group, which tend to be more hardy than the foregoing; and the Japanese group, including many introduced by Mr. Luther Burbank.

Operations are not unattended by difficulties and troubles, however. A gale of wind may dislodge, a storm of hail may disfigure a portion of the farmer's crop. Perhaps the Colorado beetle will play havoc with his potatoes. "Yellows"—that dread mysterious disease, may break out in his peach plantation; a Government inspector promptly arriving to mark affected trees for destruction, no compensation being paid.

Knowledge, perseverance and industry are required of the fruit grower. "I earn my daily bread," one of them told me, "by the sweat of my hired man's brow;" but he did but jest, as was apparent when I saw him, a wealthy man, one day helping to pack his peaches, on another day driving a loaded wagon to the cannery. Indeed, one of the chief charms of life in the Belt is that there, as everywhere else in Canada, all forms of manual labor are recognized as honorable.

It need not be supposed that the graces of life are neglected in that community. When the day's work is don, overalls are exchanged for orthodox attire. Dances and evening parties are frequent; gaiety deriving a stimulus from the occurrence of such "seaside" resorts as Grimsby Beach, where people come from afar to spend summer holidays in a village of dainty cottages. Bedecked with flags and Japanese lanterns, those cottages nestle among great maples and cedars preserved beside the lake; and on a clean shore of sand and shingle the little ones assemble to bathe and paddle.

Resident millionaires, whose fortunes were made in the States, have contributed to the amenities of life in the Belt. One has built at Grimsby "The Village Inn"—an asylum appreciated by visitors, since it is furnished with taste and provided with all conveniences proper to a first class hotel. Another—at Jordan Harbor, near Vineland—has established, close to the Provincial Government's useful and extensive Experimental Fruit Farm, a superb children's school, associated with a fine library, a natural-history museum and a beautiful garden, not to forget a band-stand, an open-air skating rink, a toboggan slide and a concert hall with upholstered opera chairs to accommodate three hundred persons.

The two main sections of society in the Belt are: Canadian families whose orchards have brought them affluence; and young Englishmen and Scots who, after serving their apprenticeship under experienced growers, have bought land with money supplied by relatives in the old country.

And this suggests a final word of warning: Without the requisite capital, it is impossible to embark on fruit farming in the north belt of the Niagara Peninsula.

LOST HIS MIND
(Hamilton Spectator)

It was learned Monday morning that Jas. W. Everett, the man charged with a serious offence against a little girl last week, has been committed to the asylum for the insane. Everett's case is a most pathetic one. Coming of a highly respectable family in Toronto, he made a host of friends in Hamilton and was credited with being one of the most efficient barbers in the city. Some time ago he suffered an attack of neuritis, which has left his mind affected and his nervous system a total wreck.

Everett was well known in this section, having worked for Mr. R. Lockwood at different times. The last time about two years ago.

Land Values and Quantities of Fruit Raised Per Acre Take His Breath Away. Fruit Growers Bear Unmisktable Stamp of Prosperity.

Certainly the longer a visitor stays in the Belt, the more clearly does he realize—from the accumulating testimony of what he sees and what he hears—that a large measure of prosperity is enjoyed by its healthy and hearty community of fruit growers. But to capture from an orchardist just such simple set of facts as, without violating the law of averages, would reflect and illustrate that prosperity, proved a difficult task. If I questioned one grower as to the returns he received from peaches, I must have questioned thirty; and it will not be amiss to quote a few typical replies, translating dollars into their approximate equivalent in British currency.

"Most of my trees," said one man, "are only three years old, but from two and a half acres of fully bearing peaches I last year received 1,700 eleven quart baskets, which brought me £172."

"Off one acre this year," said another, "I have cleared £100. Yes—I mean what I say; there was a balance of £100 after deducting the cost of picking and packages. But, of course, that was quite exceptional, and some of my other acres have not given more than half that return."

"The average from my bearing trees," another grower explained, "would be about £70 to the acre, and I suppose my expenses, including the cost of fertilizing, spraying, picking and packing, would be £17."

"Does it pay to grow peaches?" echoed an energetic fruit grower who hailed from the United States. "You bet it does. See here—you've got two hundred trees to the acre. Take the average at four baskets to the tree—that's eight hundred baskets. You sell 'em at 2s. a basket, which works out at £80. Knock off £10 for picking and baskets, and there's £70 left. That's clear enough, isn't it? And, mind you, those figures are not guess work; they stand for what I'm actually doing, and what anybody else may do just as easily, if he's got half an ounce of sense."

I certainly agreed that, as far as it went, the statement was admirably clear; and it seemed to me that here was a little group of facts which would serve typically to illustrate the financial aspect of peach growing. In this opinion, however, I was grievously mistaken, as became apparent when, a few days later, I submitted those figures to just such a jury of experts as had dealt with the raspberry problem.

At the mention of two hundred peach trees to the acre there was a chorus of laughter.

"Why, that's how people grow them across the border," I was told. "Years ago they were planted just as close on this side, but we've learnt better since then. Twenty feet by eighteen, or even twenty by twenty, is quite near enough. Two hundred trees to the acre! No, Sir, one hundred and ten is more like it."

Though somewhat abashed at the reception my first average had met with, I nevertheless submitted my second—four baskets to the tree.

Again the assembled peach growers were amused. The figure was denounced as a ludicrous under-estimate of the yield from an acre of mature trees. Nay, the two hundred and the four were at once accepted in the relation of cause and effect.

"You see," someone said, "what comes of planting the trees only fifteen feet apart each way!"

I then, with grave misgiving that I submitted my remaining figures—2s. as the average price, and £10 as the deduction for baskets and for gathering. But to those figures no serious exception was taken.

Not yet, it will be noted, was I in a position to present my fellow countrymen with a definite and comprehensive statement concerning the revenue to be derived from this phase of fruit farming. Light, however, came at last.

Mr. F. was mentioned to me as a young Scotchman who, having an excellent peach farm of ten acres, was running it to full advantage. So I called upon Mr. F., and he gave me a comprehensive view of a peach grower's expenditure and revenue.

"One of my acres," he explained, "is taken up with my house, garden and outhouses. Another acre is occupied with peach trees which, being less than four years old, yield me no return worth mentioning. The remaining eight acres carry bearing peach trees that are from four to seventeen years old. On the one acre of immature peach trees I grow potatoes, tomatoes, strawberries, bush fruits and vegetables for our own domestic use, much of the produce being given away, but none marketed. On the eight acres of bearing trees, there are now no auxiliary crops. So my entire revenue is derived from peaches. It is open to question whether a man is wise to have all his eggs in one basket; but that is my position. And, talking about eggs, perhaps I ought to mention that, though you see quite a number of fowls scratching around, their produce is all consumed on the premises."

"You grew market crops," I asked, "on portions of the eight acres while you were waiting for the more recent trees to mature."

"Oh, yes," Mr. F. replied, "I grew raspberries, strawberries, potatoes, etc., but in quantities that diminished year by year as the trees made more and more demand on the soil. As recently as 1909 I still had a residue of those temporary plantations, and in that year they yielded me £120 gross. Then I judged the time had come for leaving my peach trees in undisputed possession."

"And how many baskets," I asked, "do you gather in a season?"

"Last year," he replied, in allusion to 1910, "the eight acres, which carry exactly eight hundred bearing trees, yielded 7,200 baskets, which sold for £650, being at the average rate of about 1¼d. a pound. The trees vary considerably in age and consequently in productiveness. About fifty per cent are from six to nine years old, forty per cent run to twelve and fourteen years and ten per cent to seventeen years."

"What is the average rate of increase in the yield of a peach tree?"

"In the fourth year," replied Mr. F., "you can count upon about two baskets, in the fifth year three baskets, in the sixth year five baskets, and in the seventh year seven baskets. From that point there is a steady rise until, in the twelfth year and afterwards, you get an average of fourteen baskets. I have taken as many as twenty-one baskets from a single tree."

I next inquired what it had cost Mr. F.—in current, as distinguished from capital, expenditure—to secure the 7,200 baskets of peaches and maintain his beautiful garden.

"The largest item," he explained, "is for my hired man, who is with me permanently and who does the bulk of the heavy work. I pay him £90 a year, in providing his own board and lodging, except that we supply him with vegetables, fruit and eggs. I have to keep a horse for cultivating the ground, and the cost of its feed, etc., is £10 a year. For additional labor, mainly in picking, my expenditure last year was £25. There was a total outlay of £70 for marketing the crop. Fertilizers, spray fluids, repairs and incidentals came out at £60."

"Then your net income was £390?"

"Yes,—I usually reckon it at £400."

The question of capital expenditure remained to be considered.

"Assuming," I said, "that a man buys ten acres of peach land, with a house and outbuildings upon it, what initial outlay would he have to face?"

"One hundred and fifty pounds would cover the cost of horse, harness, plough, harrow and cultivator; and for another £50 he would be able to plant his land."

"And what shall we allow for living expenses during the year or two years that are unremunerative?"

"It all depends upon the man," said Mr. F. "Out here, of course, it is the usual thing for a bachelor to do his own housework. Take your hired hands, for instance. They usually manage to bank about half their wages; and most of them in a few years are able to start in another district on their own account.

To this summary of peach farming in its financial aspect, I am able to add a finishing touch. For I chanced to become acquainted with the man from whom Mr. F. purchased his ten acres, with its handsome brick house and fine garden.

"I bought that property as a speculation nine years ago for £800," he said. "I sold it to Mr. F. five years ago for £2,400. That was a big profit for me, of course, but I reckon his investment is paying him fifteen per cent. At any rate, I happen to know he won't sell the place for £3,000."

At this point, I hope, the reader will be conscious of what seems to be a glaring inconsistency in my narrative. The first chapter bore witness that agricultural land in Ontario, owing to special circumstances, is very cheap. Yet here am I referring to a transaction in which land was sold at about £200 an acre.

The solution of the enigma lies in the fact that, as has been already mentioned, the Belt (that mere tiny trip of Old Ontario—approximately 80 square miles out of 48,000 square miles) is an exceptional region.

In the favorite Grimsby neighborhood, it is by no means unusual for good peach land (sandy loam on a gravelly subsoil) to exchange hands at the figure named; £200 an acre being, as we have seen, a sound commercial value, as measured by results. To understand hiw this value has been created we must glance at the rise and development of the peach industry in the Belt.

Dennis Woolverton's family (whose ancestors had emigrated from England to America in 1690) did not remove to Canada with the United Empire Loyalists in 1783. Not till some fifteen years later did they cross the boundary and start farming on the north shore of the Niagara Peninsula. Nor, apparently, did this family sever their old ties with the new Republic; for Dennis, when well advanced in years, was in the habit (as his grandson informed me) of going back occasionally to the scenes of his boyhood in New Jersey. From one of those expeditions, it seems, he returned with specimens of a form of vegetation remote from the experiences of Canadian pioneers—to wit, some peach trees. The attempt of a Londoner to grow bananas in his back garden would not, I imagine, excite more hilarity than was probably provoked some half century ago, by the attempt to grow peaches on an Ontario farm. But Dennis was not the man to be daunted by doubters; and behold! the trees bore a bountiful crop. This encouraged the old man, and it was not many years before a considerable part of his acreage, in place of fodder for pigs, was growing fruit for princes.

Other people took the hint. As time went on, more and more peach trees were planted. Some of Dennis Woolverton's neighbors also planted pears and plums, cherries and berries, quinces and currants; and they had good cause to be glad they had done so. Gradually it was demonstrated that, in the north belt of the Niagara Peninsula, Canada possessed an ideal place for the growing of fruit. Transit facilities were developed. The price of land rose—and is still rising.

The City of Hamilton at one end of the Belt, and the Town of St. Catharines at the other, are important marketing centres. Within two hours' journey is Toronto, a great consumer; within ten hours' journey is Montreal, a great consumer. Western Canada, enjoying very limited opportunities for raising fruit, makes an ever-increasing demand for the produce of Ontario's orchards. With means of carriage the Belt is amply provided. It is traversed by the Grand Trunk Railway, and all along that length of line in summer months the platforms, sidings and freight sheds look like outlying portions of Convent Garden market. Then there is the electric railway, previously mentioned, running from Hamilton to Beamsville, upon the Belt's chief highway,—the hourly service of passenger cars being supplemented, from June to October, by a persisten flow of freight traffic. This consists of fruit-laden trucks destined to join trains that take them far to the east and farther to the west. Some are refrigerator cars which, thanks to Government initiative and subsidies, are provided by the railroad companies, to ensure that tender fruits shall be conveyed long distances in unimpaired condition.

Many an orchard fronting on the line has its own neat little goods platform, on which at any time the fruit farmer may deposit packages for the next-arriving car to collect—a convenience which, of course, has its influence on local land values. A constant stream of motor cars, proceeding on pleasure jaunts to and from Niagara Falls, shares the high road with wagons and trolleys piled high with gorgeous pumpkins, barrels of apples, crates of tomatoes and baskets of grapes and peaches. Indeed, this procession of bright and sweet-smelling merchandise makes so tantalizing an appeal to one's senses, that, after a while it is quite a relief to see a ton of coals, or a load of furniture, go by.

It must not be supposed that the Belt is characterized throughout by the loam soil and thorough natural drainage which are considered necessary for successful peach cultivation. Suitable land occurs in patches; and intervening areas—some of clay and adapted for grapes—canbe acquired, even in the Grimsby district, at £20 and less per acre. Moreover, in that district, peach land lying away from the railways does not command the high figure obtainable—partly because of an inferiority in local means of transport—at £50 an acre. That price, for instance, rules at the eastern end of the Peninsula—the beautiful Niagara-on-the-Lake district, where many wealthy Americans have their stately homes, and where the conditions are more favorable for peach growing (as I was informed by Mr. E. D. Smith, a former president of the Ontario Fruit

THERE'S only one quality of Canada Cement. It is the highest quality that can possibly be made with modern equipment, scientific methods and rigid inspection by expert chemists.

The Canada Cement you buy for a garden walk is the same cement that is sold by the trainload for great dams, elevators and bridges. The engineers in charge of these great works have ample facilities for testing the quality of cement.

Canada Cement

comes up to their most rigid requirements.

The farmer has not these facilities for testing the quality of cement. He must buy a product upon which he can depend for a grade that is always of highest quality, and that therefore does not need to be tested.

You can place absolute reliance upon the quality of Canada Cement.

It's always the same and always the best. The large output—which enables us to keep the price down, enables us also to maintain the factory equipment and organization that keeps the quality up.

A Canada Cement label appears on every bag and barrel of genuine Canada Cement. See that it's on the bags and barrels of cement that you buy.
